Simone Bergamaschi

I'm Simone Bergamaschi, I'm 38 years old and I'm a freelance photographer and photojournalist since 2014.
I followed my passion in photography attending the Photography Master of Mohole School, after my graduation in Literature.
I work as a contributor for different International photojournalist agency like Parallelozero, Nurphoto and Ansa.
I am strongly fascinated in foreign cultures, with particular interest in Asia and Middle East.In 2015 I published a photographic book documenting the earthquake disaster in Nepal.I published on different magazines like News Week, Marie Claire, Panorama, Oggi, La Repubblica, La Gazzetta dello Sport, La Stampa and other Italian and international newspapers.
I have been assistant photographer of Fabio Petroni, Photographer and Founder of Equestrian Time, photographer who passed me down the passion for horses and horse portrait.
My first encounter with the world of Arabian horses was three years ago at the Straight Egyptian World Championship in Vermezzo and I immediately fell in love with this fabulous animal.
